There is no better time to think about ways to get better than at the beginning of a new year. Very often, when we make New Year's resolutions, we have our fingers crossed because experience tells us that we give them up after a few months, if not after a few weeks. But, resolutions set aside, how does a church get better?

One is tempted to answer from an organizational point of view focusing on financial and attendance increases. Such evaluations are affected by marketing concerns, target populations, worship style, political and theological positions. Sometimes the organizational perspective is driven by focus groups and surveys and then mission statements, revised budgets, revamped programs, and advertising strategies. On a certain level these kinds of things can be helpful.

Unfortunately, however, they tend to fall short. There is no formula for success that will work in every circumstance, no set of steps and procedures to follow that are guaranteed to succeed. And given the negative religious trends in the larger culture it is necessary to search deeper than what the organizational focus allows us to do. There must be a better way.

Let me suggest such an idea in terms of a story about something that happened in one of the previous churches I served as pastor. One of the members of the search committee was a single woman who owned and ran a small business selling material and patterns for sewing. One day she suffered an aneurism that was nearly fatal. Through some providential timing and the miracle of medicine she survived though incapacitated for several months.

During that time her business was vulnerable. The people in the church teamed up to help. Everyone signed up for four hour shifts to work to keep the store open. No one knew anything about how to run her business. One way or another orders were made and bills paid and sales were enough to save the business until she was well enough to return to work.

That effort is an example of the church being what the church is supposed to be. Something like that, people reaching out to help others, is the way it grew for centuries before it became a dominant cultural force and is a good model for us to think about as we enter a new year.

I am not suggesting that FBC Delaware is deficient in this way. Quite the contrary, I see a great willingness to be a part of such efforts. I only hope to hold this example forth as a vision of what a church can be and how we should evaluate success. When we see things like that happening among us, we are accomplishing the mission of the church, particularly when we are able to reach beyond our own fellowship to a larger community. And then whether the numbers and finances increase will seem less important, suffering the trends of the day less frustrating. It is certainly something to think about as we start out the New Year.

An Invitation

Come and help us celebrate Larry Faulk's 70th birthday. We are having an open house on Sunday, January 10, from 2:00 to 4:00 at our house at 705 Canal Street, Delaware. We ask for no gifts, just your presence for the celebration.

– Pam and Larry Faulk

A Big Thank You

Once again we have exceeded our goal for one of our special offerings. Thank you all so much for your generous support of the RMMO (Retired Ministers and Missionaries Offering). Our goal was $700, and we exceeded that goal by well over $100.

– Pam Faulk

Volunteer Opportunities

There are three ways every week that you can help out the church by volunteering. You can sign up to pick up Panera products on Thursday evening, supervise Kid Connection during Sunday worship, and sponsor Fellowship Time after church.

The following people have graciously volunteered their time for January.

Panera pick-up:

- Jan 7 Dan and Sherry Chambers
- Jan 14 the Nace Family
- Jan 21 Dave and Mary Lou Lovell
- Jan 28 Pat Gosser

Kid Connection

- Jan 3 Deb Fogle / Alec Ferguson
- Jan 10 Jennifer Turner / Will Fogle
- Jan 17 Deb and Scott Nace
- Jan 24 Pam Faulk / Aidan Ferguson
- Jan 31 Debi Fogle / Claire Turner

Fellowship Time

- Jan 3 Bring holiday left-overs
- Jan 10 Pat Gosser
- Jan 17 Jeanne Ekelberry
- Jan 24 Beth and Archie Trigg
- Jan 31 OPEN

Thank you to all who continue to volunteer every week. It means so much. There are still open dates on the sign up sheets for these opportunities. Please consider volunteering.

News From Our Missionaries

Please check the bulletin board in the Gathering Place for newsletters from Emerson and Ivy Wu and from Jeni Pedzinski.

Of particular note is the fact that the Wus are being moved from Macau to Hong Kong.

Soup and Carol Sing, a Success!

On Sunday, December 6th at 4 p.m., 40 people enjoyed singing Christmas carols. We asked for the congregation to suggest their favorite carols which were included in the carol sing. The carols were accompanied by pianists Peter White and Jennifer Turner with Debbie Fogle and Will Fogle playing violin, and Mary Lou Lovell playing organ. Thanks to Peter for playing Christmas music before the carol sing began.

After singing, everyone went to the youth room for delicious home-made soup, crackers, and cookies. What a great time of eating and fellowship!

Thanks to all who provided soups and cookies. Thanks to Pat Gosser for organizing the food. Thanks to Larry for putting up the TV and scrolling the words of the carols.

Thanks to Deb Fogle for printing song sheets. Thanks to Larry Faulk and Mark Allison for carrying tables to Youth Room as the Fellowship Hall was not available because the furnace stopped working that day.

Letter

We have received a letter from Deborah and Harold Van Brockhoven who live in Georgia. It's hanging on the bulletin board.

Youth Group

Thank you to Dr. Allison, who hosted the Christmas Party for the youth. We played a cool scavenger hunt game and ate lots of pizza. It was a nice night to get to know each other and to celebrate the upcoming Christmas holiday.

Also, thank you to Larry Faulk, Pam Shears, Dr. Allison, & Deb Nace for coming to the Christmas Clearing House to pack food with the youth. Colin, Alec, Jacob, Hannah, Bowen, Will and Gabe went from the youth group to shop for food for the families. They did a great job and provided a nice service to our community.

Our next youth group meeting is on January 10th at 6:30 p.m. The following week, Jan. 17th, the Marion Association Youth will be hosting a meeting at Zoomers Skating Rink in Marion. Look for more details in the upcoming weeks.
